

SORTLI

A FREE MOBILE APP TO HELP YOUNG PEOPLE TRANSITION TO INDEPENDENCE

Sortli (short for 'sort out your life') is a free mobile app for young people to help them with their transition to independence. It focuses on eight key areas of identity, relationships, finding a place to live, health, finances, gaining education and looking for a job, legal matters and general living skills.

Developed collaboratively with young people who have transitioned from care, Sortli is full of useful information to help young people on their way to becoming adults.

Young people can use Sortli independently or assisted by you as part of their journey to independence.

WHY USE SORTLI?

- Fun and easy-to-navigate
- Access to links and resources for everything young people need to think of when becoming an adult
- Goal lists to set personal goals and milestones to keep track of progress and celebrate successes
- A budget calculator to help young people to manage their finances and ensure their income covers their expenses
- Helps to engage young people to think about their future goals and how they see themselves living as independent adults in their community
- Free download for iPhone, Android or Microsoft
